Marque A. Snow

Marque was born in Marion, Ohio, and raised across the United States, and South Korea due to his parents being dual military in the US Army. After attending the University of South Dakota, Marque and his now-husband moved to Omaha in 2011 where he began his career working with disadvantaged youth in South Omaha. In 2013, Marque was elected to the Omaha Public Schools Board of Education. Since joining the school board, he has championed equity, rigor, and accountability not only for teachers and students but also for the families and community of Omaha. Since 2017, Marque has served in board leadership on the Omaha Public Schools Board and is currently serving his second year as board president.

Marque is dedicated to making sure that disadvantaged children in OPS have the opportunities to succeed and have access to all OPS programs and staff support to become successful. Marque has faith in the teachers and staff of OPS to accomplish this goal and wants to make sure local schools are empowered to succeed as a team. Marque looks forward to keeping in touch with the parents, students, teachers, and schools of OPS to help respond to the ever-changing needs of the district.

Marque is also the Program Director at The Nebraska Center for Workforce Development, which focuses on getting students interested in the building and technical trades in Omaha. During his free time outside of the School Board and work, Marque mentors with the 100 Black Men of Omaha and also serves on the African Culture Connection Board.
